Full Stack Developer, Dedicated To Continual Learning.

- My passion is fixing things, and development is a field that has a way of throwing problems in front of you constantly, and when there are no problems in sight, there is always something to improve. Comes naturally for me to love development, being in the front line for fixing whatever comes my way. As a full-stack developer I find it easy to switch to whatever technology needs to be used and have a short adaptation time when jumping into already started projects
